Distinctive competence that's proven effective.

Lives and liability are on the line. When potential hazards can't be eliminated, and warrant on-product warnings, well-designed safety labels are your means to communicate risk. In fact, an ever-increasing number – with insurance industry estimates citing between 50 to 70 percent – of product liability lawsuits contain “failure to warn” or “inadequate warnings” allegations.

Clarion's safety label systems embody best practice design principles defined by the latest industry standards, standards we helped to write. For over 25 years, we've led both the U.S. and international efforts to harmonize standards in the area of safety signs, labels and markings; this includes contributing to the leadership and direction of ANSI, ISO, OSHA and NFPA safety codes.

Working directly with our clients, we've created systems of safety labels that effectively communicate their specific safety requirements – all in the effort to reduce risk and protect people. There's no greater goal. There's no greater reward.

Unmatched expertise, unparalleled experience. It's why customers choose Clarion.
